

Dr. Ben Stong offers the KalosLift Facelift, the most advanced surgical facelift available.

Dr. Stong is the only surgeon in the Atlanta area, and one of the few in the country, to offer this variation on the gold standard in facelifts: the deep plane facelift (or composite rhytidectomy). It can result in patients looking 15 years younger, or more.

The KalosLift addresses the superficial muscular aponeurotic system (or SMAS). It not only lifts the neck and lower cheek and jawline but also the upper cheek or midface region. This creates a more comprehensive, natural result versus a "pulled" or stretched look. Reducing sagging jowls, neck tissue and nasolabial folds results in a softer, more natural appearance.

The techniques that make the KalosLift superior include:

- Smaller incisions than the incisions commonly used in other facelifts to reduce scarring and hide evidence of surgery.
- Extended midface/upper cheek dissection. Other facelifts only address the jowls and neck.

- The KalosLift extends the upper cheek and midface dissection further. This results in better improvement in the upper cheeks by lifting and softening of the midface region more.

- The KalosLift releases more of the midface region.

- The KalosLift improves the neck more significantly to create a tighter, more defined appearance, since it includes a platysma repositioning procedure.

The KalosLift downtime and recovery are on par with the best techniques used for any mini facelift in the world, with exceptionally better results. If you have been considering a facelift, choose only the best for your procedure.

A KalosLift makes all the difference for this patient.
