

Ben Stong, MD Interviewed by Shana Thornton on the Benefits of Reconstructive Surgery after Cancer Treatment

“Although certain cancer treatments can be very effective, they can also be horribly disfiguring. Plus they can take an emotional toll, including on your self confidence, which can be very discouraging and painful. Certain cancers, like throat cancer in particular, can require huge surgeries followed by large reconstruction efforts. As a dual board-certified plastic surgeon I am often called on to help rectify this disfigurement. To be part of that healing process is certainly very fulfilling.” - Dr. Ben Stong, MD
